hello antonio,

hey - thanks for the prompt reply.

i hope all is well and that you/yours have great holiday too.

for the cross reference look up, attached please find the list of names and date of birth you mentioned. list is provided in microsoft office excel work sheet format.

looking forward to seeing what results from the cross reference.

best personal regards,

phil

Hey Phil!

We can assist in identifying the addresses of agencies' Administration locations that have P.O. Boxes; unless they are a special population, such as Domestic Violence agencies. However, the database doesn't keep individual clients home addresses in it.

So, in terms of identifying those that are/were homeless, if you can provide a list of names with at least their DOB, we can look them up in the UNITY system.

I think that's the best method to doing the cross referencing.

Subject: hello antonio, this is phil muino- hoping you could provide some information we need

hello antonio,

i recently looked at some "limited" listing of homeless shelters homeless addresses - which i think was derived from the unity system.

upon reviewing the list, i noticed that some of the physical street addresses were coc member organization corporate headquarter addresses, even p o boxes, and not the actual physical residential street addresses where homeless actually reside.

do you or someone else have a more comprehensive list of actual physical street address locations where homeless persons actually reside, lists that includes both temporary residences and permanent residences, that can be shared with the jail project team. and since the jail data goes all the way back to 1995, an address list that encompasses both past and present temporary/permanent residential addresses would be ideal.

we can then compare this address list to the street addresses list we compiled from the jail database to determine which inmates can be "categorized" homeless at the time they were booked.

in the meantime, team members have been experimenting with algorithms in effort to determine which inmates can be categorized homeless.

as you know, the 21 years of jail data strongly implies that the many homeless initiatives successes have had a positive effect on reducing jail interactions substantially, and the team is looking to accurately quantify this effect.

any assistance from you, your org or others is appreciated.

best regards,
phil
